Dear Friend

Many of us are familiar with the saying that America is the land of opportunity. And in many ways it is. But of course, reality is considerably more complex than that.

Wes Moore, author and CEO of the Robin Hood Foundation in New York has said, “Potential is universal, opportunity is not.”

This quote captures the reality that, while we all come into this life with great potential, we do not all have equal access to opportunity. Unfortunately, many people in our community face severe disadvantages based on race, where they live, their education, lack of family stability, material poverty, or other factors of circumstance.

At St. Vincent de Paul of Baltimore, we believe strongly that everyone has tremendous potential, and that we all have a role in eliminating systemic disadvantages so that all people are guaranteed fair treatment and the opportunity to live in decent, safe, and affordable housing, receive quality education, be employed at a fair wage, have access to health care and healthy food, share in prosperity, and reach their full potential.

“Potential is universal, opportunity is not.”

As we reflect on our work and accomplishments over the past year in this Annual Report, we hope you will see the instrumental role that we play in serving those who are materially poor, marginalized, and vulnerable. By providing them with access to the skills, resources, and opportunity to achieve their full potential, our work benefits both those we serve and our entire community.

Thank you so much for joining in our mission and work, and for sharing your gifts, talents, and blessings. We invite you to continue to be a part of our efforts to expand opportunities, helping those we serve to move beyond poverty and pursue all of the possibilities that life has to offer.

Sincerely Yours,

John J. Schiavone

Homelessness

Home Connections doubles in 2018

Everyone should have access to safe, affordable, and stable housing. But for individuals and families with chronic illnesses, disabilities, mental health issues, or substance use disorders, housing is often a huge challenge, and many have experienced long-term or repeated homelessness. The solution to this is permanent supportive housing, a model that has been demonstrated to effectively end homelessness for these most vulnerable populations.

In 2018 our Home Connections Program expanded from 60 units to 138 units. Home Connections is a Permanent Supportive Housing Program that uses a Housing First approach to expand housing and supportive services to those who have experienced chronic homelessness.

Child & Family Services

Early Head Start and the Ark Initiative added to early childhood services

At the start of FY 2018, we assumed operations of the Ark, an initiative focused on serving children from families experiencing homelessness that was previously operated by Episcopal Community Services. The Ark initiative provides daily transportation and enhanced supportive services to these vulnerable children and their families.

2018 also marked the first year of providing Early Head Start services, serving 58 low income children from newborns to two year olds, and their families, including pregnant moms. By reaching children at such an early age, we improve the lifelong outlook for health and success for these children.

Home Connections served a total of 193 clients

- 100% accessed health care services
- 97% retained or exited to permanent housing
- 75% accessed mental health services

826 number of low-income children provided early childhood education

747 low-income families provided supportive services

427 homeless and low-income children attended summer camp
Access to Healthy Food

KidzTable increases after school and summer meal service

In FY 2018 our KidzTable program made significant strides in reaching food-insecure children. The biggest gains were in Baltimore County, where the family poverty rate has grown steadily in recent years, and 43 percent of public-school children are now eligible for after school and summer meals programs. KidzTable now provides meals at 43 after school and summer sites in Baltimore County, and we continue to seek ways to expand food access to low income children throughout the region.

Workforce Development

2018 Navigator model expansion

Employment is essential to economic mobility for everyone, but especially for those impacted by poverty and homelessness. In 2018 we restructured our Career Connections program and adopted a new Navigator Model of service, a national best practice for providing employment services, to serve families in our Front Door Rapid Rehousing Program.

As the sun sets in the Baltimore area each evening, more than 4,000 people are experiencing homelessness. Many are families with children.

Minimizing the length of time individuals and families are living on the streets or in shelters is absolutely key to avoiding the long-term, negative effects of homelessness on both adults and children. For this reason, rehousing is always the immediate and central focus of all of St. Vincent de Paul’s Homeless Services.

For those who have experienced a crisis but are capable of sustaining housing, we employ best practices that involve short term interventions such as prevention and shelter diversion services, brief shelter stays to achieve stability, rapid re-housing, and shelter diversion services.

For those with a long history of homelessness and who, due to disabilities or other circumstances, are unable to be self-sufficient, we offer permanent supportive housing services, such as our Home Connections program.

“Everyone should have access to decent, safe, and affordable housing, and we offer a wide range of services tailored to the needs of each person we serve.”

–Dr. Toni Boulware-Stackhouse, Sr. Director of Homeless Services

Home Connections’ permanent supportive housing model provides immediate housing, coupled with supportive services to chronically homeless persons with disabilities. Home Connections provides opportunities for housing stability by providing rent subsidies coupled with intensive supportive services to ensure participants remain housed. In 2018, we doubled our Home Connections program to help provide more individuals the opportunity to achieve self-sufficiency.
Success Profile: Meet Sharon Newman

When Sharon Newman first came to us in 2009, she had endured years of substance abuse and was chronically homeless. Our Home Connections staff provided Sharon with permanent, stable housing. Bernadette Cox, SVDP case manager, has provided intensive, in-home supportive services to Sharon. “She has been closely following her program for almost 10 years now. She is dedicated to her recovery and doing great.” said Ms. Cox.

The stable housing gave Sharon a confident base with the encouragement of her case workers. Sharon has now joined a drug and alcohol treatment program as a peer recovery specialist.

Today Sharon is a Home Connections success story. Clean and sober, she is serving others at the program that helped her become sober and achieve housing stability.

“My counselors at St. Vincent de Paul taught me how to budget my money, cook, clean and run a house. They also helped me with my communication skills, and would talk to me about how I was feeling. I am so grateful for the time they spent getting me the help I needed.”

– Sharon Newman, Home Connections client
Without access to high-quality education, children born into poverty are likely to remain in poverty throughout their lives. A key way to reduce poverty is to change the trajectory for young children so that they don’t become trapped in poverty for life.

Studies have demonstrated that children from low-income families who attend full-time, high-quality early education programs, like Head Start, have higher cognitive test scores than their peers who don’t have access to that education. They are more likely to graduate from high school and college, hold a job, have higher earnings, and stay away from crime. This is why the first five years are so important to breaking the cycle of poverty.

St. Vincent de Paul’s Head Start program has 38 classrooms at seven locations across Baltimore City, serving 728 low-income children and their parents each year. We also offer Early Head Start services to 58 children under the age of three and their parents. Our Head Start program has a special focus on serving Latino and Hispanic children, and we are the largest provider of early childhood education in Baltimore City serving this population.

“We are committed to developing our cultural competencies to serve different populations, and have increased the number of Spanish-speaking Family Service Coordinators to serve families who are Hispanic or Latino. We are preparing all young children, regardless of their background, to be ready for kindergarten and a lifetime of success.”

–Olutunde Clarke, Sr. Director Early Childhood Services
Community Activist
Asiane’ Philips

As a young working mother in Baltimore, when Claudia Kane needed childcare for her first-born daughter she chose Head Start. She knew that three-year-old Asiane would receive excellent care and, more importantly, a free, quality preschool education.

Today Asiane is a successful student in the Gifted and Talented program at Hampstead Hill Academy, and she’s involved in activities ranging from the drama club to the debate club, where she has earned an impressive collection of trophies and medals.

Both mother and daughter say that Asiane’s early years at Head Start played a significant role in her academic success today. Those early lessons went beyond ABCs and 123s. Claudia said, “Asiane learned the skills to sit down, listen, and focus, which made her ready for school.”

Claudia also credits Head Start with teaching independent thinking. She recalled a project in which a four-year-old Asiane studied Garrett Morgan, a black inventor who created the traffic light. She learned about Morgan’s process and even built her own small model.

In March 2018 Asiane exhibited her independent thinking when she organized a student walkout to protest gun violence. Asiane said, “I like taking action and being part of things that are peaceful and positive, and I want to do more when I’m older.”

Olutunde Clarke, Sr. Director of Early Childhood Services, remembers Asiane and said, “It’s a great privilege to see Asiane, and so many other former students, developing into young people who are ready to make their mark on the world.”

“I like taking action and being part of things that are peaceful and positive, and I want to do more when I’m older.”

- Asiane Philips

Just the START
They Needed

Since 2001 our Head Start Program has grown to 38 classrooms at seven sites across Baltimore City. Access to preschool education promotes higher cognitive abilities, higher rates of high school and college graduation, higher employment rates, higher earnings, and lower arrest rates in traditionally underserved populations. Our Head Start graduates are a testament to that success.
Employment is key to ending poverty and homelessness, but the homeless population often faces significant barriers to joining the workforce. Our Career Connections program has been successful in providing intensive, workforce development services and, in 2017, funded largely by the Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Foundation, Career Connections adopted the Navigator model for serving individuals experiencing homelessness and with other barriers to employment.

The Navigator model is an evidence-based, national best practice that involves embedding employment specialists, or “Navigators,” directly into programs serving individuals experiencing homelessness. It offers intensive job readiness and support resources, followed by job retention support for up to two years. Career Connections Navigators serve clients at our Front Door rapid rehousing program, House of Ruth, and Health Care Access Maryland. We’ve also adapted the model to serve clients at Sarah’s Hope Family Shelter and Beans and Bread.

Career Connections helps individuals overcome barriers to employment such as lack of education or criminal backgrounds. Career Connections helps participants establish career goals, obtain jobs, and maintain sustained employment. Navigators coordinate with the client and a team that includes program case managers, vocational training providers, financial literacy professionals, and support systems for mental health and substance abuse.

Career Connections’ Navigators help clients access training providers and employers who will accept persons with criminal backgrounds, no high school diploma or GED, or those who lack previous work history. Training has been secured for a wide range of employment, including the maritime, transportation, distribution and logistics, and nursing assistance fields.

“The Navigator model is ideal for serving those experiencing homelessness. It is especially well-suited for those being rapidly rehoused because, once their housing subsidy tapers off, stable employment is essential for them to maintain their housing and self-sufficiency.”

–Cassandra Nwosu, Director of Career Connections

Success Profile: Tierricka Sims

Adversity has been a constant for Baltimore native Tierricka Sims. She grew up in a tough neighborhood off North Avenue and dropped out of high school early on. Her first job was at McDonalds, but it didn’t last long. After that she supported herself with a variety of low-wage, dead-end jobs.

After an arrest for petty crime, Tierricka’s probation officer referred her to Next Course, our food service training program. She was dubious, but ready to change the path of her life, so she applied to the 12-week certification program.

Each Next Course cohort begins with an intense week of instruction. Sometimes students get overwhelmed and drop out, but this was the challenge that Tierricka had been waiting for. With support from Monique Jordan, our Training Chef, she pushed through and emerged a star student.

“Next Course literally changed my life. I’d never finished anything in my life before this.”

- Tierricka Sims

At her graduation, Tierricka was offered the opportunity to interview with several large, established employers, but after further counseling with her career development specialist, she decided to first earn her GED – a choice that will pay future dividends.
Hunger

Access to Healthy Food Helps Kids

Poor nutrition has serious consequences for everyone, but the effects are most insidious in children. Lack of proper nutrition affects physical and cognitive development, and often leads to poor performance in school. This can result in lifelong opportunity loss.

We envision a time when no child in the Baltimore region is held back by poor nutrition. In 2010, we created KidzTable to prepare and deliver healthy food to low-income children in Head Start programs.

In the intervening years we expanded our service to include after school, day care, summer camps, and schools in Baltimore City, Baltimore County, and Howard County.

Maximizing participation in federal nutrition programs is a critical step in alleviating food insecurity and hunger and lifting children and families out of hunger.

Partner Profile: Sisters Academy of Baltimore

Sisters Academy of Baltimore is a tuition-free, all-girls school founded and supported by four congregations of religious women who believe in the power of education to transform young women and their communities.

The students are 5th through 8th graders who live in some of the most distressed neighborhoods in Baltimore, surrounded by poverty, high unemployment, drug addiction, and crime. The goal of the school is to inspire young women to feel empowered to be agents of transformation in their own lives, their families, their communities, and society.

To prepare their students for success, Sisters Academy provides a rigorous curriculum and holistic education approach that encourages intellectual, social, physical, and spiritual development. Principal Laura Minakowski relies on KidzTable to deliver fresh and nutritious meals each school day to ensure that these young women have the healthy foundation they need.

“Sisters Academy of Baltimore values our partnership with KidzTable. Nutritious breakfasts, lunches and snacks are prepared fresh daily and delivered directly to our kitchen. KidzTable supports our school’s mission of educating the whole child and gives us peace of mind knowing our children are eating healthy meals.”

Donor Profile: Dennis Ford

Dennis Ford is a very familiar face within Baltimore area St. Vincent de Paul parish conferences. An energetic and passionate volunteer, he has served many leadership roles for the Baltimore Council, and as the conference president for his own parish, conference at St. John’s, Westminster.

In true Vincentian spirit, Dennis and his wife Gail never hesitate to step forward to help those in need in their local community. But the Fords are quick to point out that they are just two of more than 73 volunteers at St. John’s SVDP conference.

The St. John’s group volunteers at a soup kitchen once a week, and they serve men and women in the Carroll County Detention Center by making weekly visits for fellowship and spiritual support.

Most of their energy and resources are devoted to their person-to-person service. For two hours every weekday, anyone can walk in and ask for help with financial needs, food, or nearly anything. SVDP volunteers are trained to help clients combine social services referrals with funding to help individuals and families in crisis remain stably housed with access to food and other supports.

The assistance is always generous in spirit – and is always aimed at helping people build self-sufficiency. Last year, St John provided assistance to 12,334 people.

“Gail and I are dedicated to doing our small part in the big picture of what goes on here at the St. John Conference and at conferences across the state and country. We consider ourselves blessed to serve.”

Donor Profile: Audrey & Dick Stermer

For Dick and Audrey Stermer, life in the late 80s was good. Dick was advancing in his career with a national construction company, and Audrey was successfully managing a household of six through multiple cross country moves. Settled in the Baltimore, life was not without its challenges, but they felt ready to do something for the community.

It was at that time in 1987 when Sister Charmaine Krohe, SSND, then Director of the St. Ambrose Outreach Center in Park Heights, appeared on a Thanksgiving eve television interview talking about the poverty and need in the community the center served. In a moment, the Stermer’s felt compelled to act.

Upon meeting with Sr. Charmaine, Dick and Audrey were captivated by how she was transforming lives with her work at the St. Ambrose Center. Their initial donation quickly became a family investment. While their teenage children volunteered in the center’s summer camp, Dick and Audrey worked closely with Sr. Charmaine to devise ways to support the center’s work in the community. It was the early days of a relationship that eventually led to a lifelong friendship and close bond that exists to this day.

In the mid 1990s the St. Ambrose Center was merged into the St. Vincent de Paul organization, and the Stermer’s expanded their support of the St. Ambrose Center, making a transformative gift to help renovate and expand the center, and endow services for the future.

The work of the center today now focuses on providing rapid rehousing and employment services to homeless individuals and families across the City—services that are in part made possible because of the Stermer’s foundational gifts to the Center back in the late 1990s.

Although the Stermer’s moved to a ranch in Colorado a number of years ago, they have retained their ties to the Baltimore area, and continue to support our work in the community. In recent years, their loyal support has provided critical aid to our workforce development services including Next Course, our occupational skills training program that prepares men and women with barriers to employment for successful careers in the food service industry.

“I can’t overstate how important Dick and Audrey’s involvement has been to St. Vincent de Paul of Baltimore over the years,” says John Schiavone, President and CEO. “They are a wonderful couple who are not only incredibly generous, but also humble as they invest wisely in programs with impact on those who are struggling in poverty.”

The Stermer’s believe in creating meaningful opportunities for individuals to invest in themselves for long term change. They continue to admire from afar the work of St. Vincent de Paul of Baltimore, and express feeling fortunate to be able to give back to those who are struggling. Dick and Audrey said, “We are blessed to have received so much more than we’ve given through our involvement and friendships, and our lives have been deeply enhanced as a result.”

Our Values

DIGNITY We see God’s image in every person, recognizing their inherent value by offering respect and compassion, and giving special care to those who are materially poor, marginalized, and vulnerable.

INCLUSION We promote diversity and embrace the unique attributes, characteristics, abilities, cultures, classes, faiths, orientations, and races that make people who they are, recognizing that we are one human family.

EQUITY We believe in eliminating systemic disadvantages so that all people are guaranteed fair treatment and have the opportunity to live in decent, safe, and affordable housing, receive quality education, be employed at a fair wage, have access to health care and healthy food, share in prosperity, and reach their full potential.

EQUALITY We see those we serve as our equals in every way, seeking to understand the road they have travelled to reach our door, recognizing they know what is best for themselves and their families, and encouraging them to make their own choices.

COLLABORATION We believe in the transformative power of building relationships and community, and in actively engaging partners in our work toward the well-being of all.

SERVICE We humbly recognize service as an opportunity to receive, as much as give.

EXCELLENCE We relentlessly pursue the highest standards in all that we do, embracing innovation and best practices.

STEWARDSHIP We use our resources responsibly and efficiently, and we hold ourselves accountable for the highest levels of integrity, transparency, and measurable results.

Our Mission

To ensure those impacted by poverty have the skills, resources, and opportunity to achieve their full potential.
